

Hunter Becomes a Pirate

How does a five-year-old handle the change in his life that is going to make him different from the other children at school? How do parents teach their child how to make lemonade when life gives you lemons? In Hunter Becomes a Pirate, Janice Limb Myers tells the tale of a young boy and his experience with some pirates and a pirate ship, an experience that includes his school teacher and classmates. In this story, Hunter was having a great day at school on his first day of Kindergarten. Then Dad came to pick him up so he could go see the eye doctor for his checkup. After the examination, the doctor reluctantly told Hunter his eye muscles were not improving in one eye and he was going to have to wear an eye patch every day on the good eye to strengthen the bad eye. Hunter's classmates greeted him at school the following day with many questions about his eye patch, asking if he was now a pirate. His classmates branded him a pirate, but was he really one? And who brought that huge pirate ship to his school? Will Hunter find wearing an eye patch isn't so bad after all? About the author: Janice Limb Myers is the best-selling author of more than 36 children's books and lives with her husband in Ecuador. The grandmother of Hunter in this story, she is the mother of four and the grandmother of nine. After a successful career as an organizational development consultant, she retired and began writing and publishing. So far her favorite book is Carolee Sings in the Christmas Choir, a book she wrote in fulfillment of a dying wish for her own mother. Currently she is writing a series of Christian romance stories.
